THOUGHTS from your President ...

Hope you all received what you wanted for Christmas (Cambridge Glass I suppose), and rang the New Year in with a bright look to 1982. Resolutions were probably made by most of us, and by now most of us have probably found them to be short lived. Resolutions are usually made in a moment of spontaneous gaiety and as the gaiety wears off we forget that we are supposed to continue what we resolved for at least the remainder of the year. I envy people who have the patience and fortitude to stick to them. All in all I've done pretty well during the first month. I made five resolutions and I've only given up on the two easiest ones; to be the first man on the moon; and to be affluent enough to buy every piece of glass I like. The three most difficult ones, with a lot of teeth gritting and sacrifice, I will continue. They are: to seek out and buy every piece of Cambridge Glass I can find, to drive on the right side of the road, and to read and study everything I can about glass. (Such sacrifice).

Let's look back through 1981 and see what we had to talk about. First, there was the Auction in February, very well attended, and sending many people away with a sly smile on their faces. In June there was the super Convention with Show and Sale at the Shenandoah Inn. Also it was announced that we would renovate the building on our NCC property to be used as a MUSEUM. The following month there was a change in our Crystal Ball Editor, if you can call from super to super a change. Much work was done on the MUSEUM by a group of hard working volunteers, and many people who could not feasibly have a hand in the work donated material and money to see it become a reality. In November there was a popular Quarterly Meeting with all the fun and fine program that is typical of the regular Quarterly Meetings held during the year. If you missed these activities during 1981, make plans now to attend at least one during 1982.

Speaking of plans, the next Quarterly Meeting, featuring a fine program and Show and Tell, is only about three weeks away — on February 26th. The 1982 Annual Auction is scheduled for the following day — February 27th. Your Auction details were mailed with the January Crystal Ball, and by now you should have chosen all the pieces you wish to bid on. Even if you don't wish to buy anything, come and enjoy a great weekend. We'd love having you! The January Crystal Ball gives you all the information for making reservations.

NCC Flea Market Planned

NCC will again sponsor a Flea Market in conjunction with the NCC 1982 Annual Convention. It is planned for Saturday, June 26th at the Guernsey County Fairgrounds which are just a short distance from the Convention site at Shenandoah Inn, Old Washington, Ohio.

Arrangements are being handled by Larry Hughes, Flea Market Chairman, who requests that anyone wishing a contract to set up at the Flea Market should contact National Cambridge Collectors, Inc., Box 416, Cambridge, Ohio 43725.

EDITOR'S Reply to Vicki Sansom Letter

In a letter from Vicki Sansom which appeared in the December 1981 Crystal Ball, she stated that she had enjoyed the #1066 Aurora pictures in the June 1981 issue and that she has several pieces with Mandarin gold bowls and stems. The bowls are optic. She has been unable to find more pieces to match, although she can find other colors with crystal stems, with or without optic bowls. She asked if her pieces are odd.

According to the information I could gather, I would have to answer that your pieces are not odd or special items, Vicki. They were made in the mid 1950's and were part of the regular line. However, few were made, so that makes for difficulty in finding additional pieces now.

You also asked if a lot of Cambridge Glass is shut away in the china closets of original purchasers and not available to collectors yet.

I would assume that is probably true. Much fine glassware was purchased for wedding gifts and other special occasions which were sentimental in nature. Therefore it was treasured, cared for well and passed on to family members as long as possible. Of course, here in the Cambridge area, it often has special meaning to families whose members worked at the Glass Plant. We frequently hear that there are barrels and boxes of glass in basements in this area, but of course, some of this is pure speculation.

Request From NCC Book Committee

NCC is planning to publish another book to focus on Cambridge colors. The Book Committee has begun to formulate plans and would welcome your suggestions and help. We would be happy to have your ideas on format, and to know what information would be helpful to you.

We would also like to hear from you if you would be willing to loan items to be photographed. We are not far enough along with plans to let you know details of how the photography will be accomplished; however, we are in need of locating items especially in the unusual and hard to find colors such as topaz, carrara, etc. If you have a piece of Cambridge Glass in a hard to find color, or a piece you think might be an asset to this project, please take a moment to write to us. It is another way you can support NCC.

Write to any committee member at the club address: National Cambridge Collectors, Inc., Attn. Color Book Project, Box 416, Cambridge, Ohio 43725. Committee members are: Frank Wollenhaupt, Joy McFadden, Bill Smith and Dave Rankin.

STUDY Club News

STUDY GROUP #7 - EASTERN OHIO
"THE CAMBRIDGE BUFFS"

Cambridge Buffs Study Group were hosted to a Christmas Party by Dean and Pauline Westfall on December 12th. Guests were NCC President Willard Kolb and wife, Norma.

A buffet dinner was served by our hosts. Several games were played, one on naming Cambridge colors, and the other a number puzzle based on Cambridge pattern numbers. The games were conducted by Karen Jones, and prizes were won by Charles Upton and Peg Gotschall. The prizes of glass were given by our hosts.

A gift exchange was enjoyed with everyone receiving a piece of Cambridge Glass, and a Mini-Auction was conducted with pieces of glass donated by members. Dale Snode was our Auctioneer and we earned over $100.

Activity At The Old Cambridge Glass Plant

Recently announced by the management of the old Cambridge Glass Plant Facilities were plans to use the building again.

The plant is owned by Mr. Barnett Friedman of Brooklyn, New York, who is founder and owner of the Super Glass Corporation of New York. Super Glass Corporation produces lamps, vases and giftware and in the mid-sixties produced its lamps in Cambridge before operations were moved back to New York. The decorating department was in operation in Cambridge until about a year ago.

Mr. Richard Gallagher, who is manager of the Cambridge Plant Facilities, states that there still is much interest in the old plant by tourists hoping to tour the plant or by individuals calling or writing for pieces of Rosepoint or Caprice. In response to this interest, there are plans to reopen the plant to be used as antique and collectable shops, flea market area, a museum of glassmaking artifacts, meeting area and a small glass-making shop for making small amounts of novelty glassware. While taking NCC President Willard Kolb and Secretary Janice Hughes through the plant recently, Mr. Gallagher also discussed possible plans for excavation of the dump and for conducting tours through the plant.

The office building is the first section scheduled to open in March, and it will be used as an antique and collectable mall.

This project is not sponsored or connected in any way with NCC but may be of interest to Cambridge Collectors because of the use of the Cambridge Glass Co. buildings and site.

NOTES ON CAPRICE #2

Mark Nye Photography by Dick & Luene Brandt

I would like to share some information and pictures of unusual items in the Caprice line that I have acquired or seen recently.

Photo #1 shows the #18, 5" fruit bowl and the #19, 5" crimped fruit bowl in Crystal. Both items were produced also in Moonlight Blue and were available with the optional Alpine finish but to my knowledge they were not made in any other color. The two bowls were probably a part of the Caprice line from the time of introduction until the mid to late 1940s. Neither appears in the 1949 Catalog or any subsequent price lists or catalogs. Seldom does one see either fruit bowl today. This is the first time I have seen the crimped bowl and the first Crystal #18 bowl although I have seen it in Moonlight Blue previously.

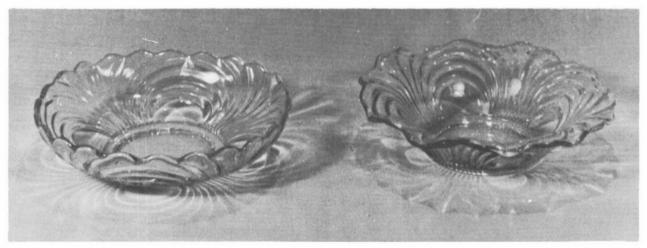

Photo #1

Photo #2 pictures the #300 blown fingerbowl and the #16 pressed fingerbowl, both in Crystal. The 1940 Price List indicates the #300 fingerbowl and its underplate were produced in Moonlight Blue, Mocha, La Rosa Pink and Pistachio but not with the Alpine finish. The #16 fingerbowl was offered in Crystal and Moonlight Blue and with the optional Alpine treatment. These two items were most likely included in the original Caprice offering and were discontinued sometime prior to 1949. Today, fingerbowls are difficult to find in any color but to obtain them in other than Crystal or Moonlight Blue would be fantastic. I have only the two pictured in my collection.

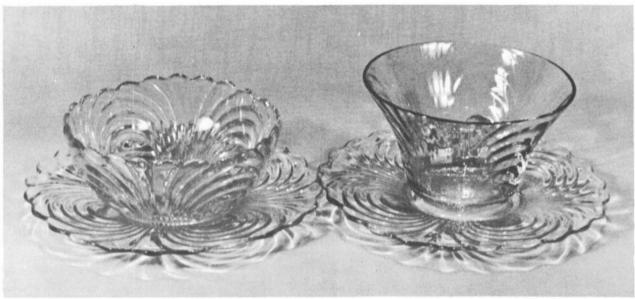

Photo #2

Photo #3 illustrates, left to right, the #341 4¼" vase, the #249 3" blown vase, the #251 4" blown vase and an unlisted vase similar to the #341 except for the top. All are in Crystal. The unlisted vase is a small version of the vase described in my article "Notes On Caprice" published in the November 1980 issue of the Cambridge Crystal Ball. According to the January 1940 Price List, the blown vases numbers 249 thru 254 were available only in Moonlight Blue and Crystal without the Alpine finish. The #341 vase is listed as being available in the same colors and with the Alpine finish. I believe the unlisted series of vases were probably also produced in Moonlight Blue.

Photo #3

Photo #4 shows two pieces, both of which are probably one of a kind items or whimseys since these items have not been seen before or do they appear on any listing that has surfaced to date. The item on the right was made from a #165 candy box bottom and has spouts on two opposite sides. These were made by reheating the piece after it came from the mold and pulling out the spouts. Its intended use was most likely as a container for gravy, salad dressing, etc. The second item was made from a pressed, footed tumbler and probably was made to use as a vase. The top has been flared out and there are three large crimps. Both items are in Crystal and are now in my collection.

While at the 1981 NCC Convention and Antique Show, I was privileged to see several other rare or unusual items in the Caprice line or made from a Caprice piece. One of these is pictured in Photo #6. I believe this item is one of a kind. The stem is the #3011 middle size nude and the top is the Caprice #356 4" bubble ball, both in Crystal. The design in the bubble ball is defective leading me to believe it was a reject. Second, the nude stem also has imperfections or damage at the top where it is highly unlikely damage could occur after the piece was fabricated without breaking the bowl or stem. To knowledge, no similar piece has been reported, the piece has not appeared on any Cambridge listing and lastly, the piece was found in Ohio. All of this leads me to conclude that a worker took two discarded pieces, joined them and took the resulting item home for his family's use and enjoyment.

Also seen at the convention and show was an unlisted rosebowl in Moonlight Blue made from the #165 candy box bottom or a very similar mold. I was unable to obtain measurements but in appearance it resembles the candy box bottom except that the top curves inward to make a smaller opening, most likely to hold a flower frog. I was told by a Cambridge expert that this piece has been seen several times and most likely was a production item. Assuming this is true, it was probably also made in Crystal.

A truly magnificent piece of glass is the #478 Caprice punch bowl which I saw at the NCC Show. It was in Crystal and can best be described by saying it is a large version of the #105 mayonnaise bowl without handles. The punch bowl measures 15" in diameter, holds five quarts and is footed like the mayonnaise bowl. The only known company reference to the punch bowl is in the Supplement to the October 5, 1953 Price List. It is believed that the supplement was printed at about the same time as the October 1953 Price List as it is in the same format except it does not bear page numbers. Production of the punch bowl probably occurred sometime during the period from September 1953 thru the plant closing in June 1954. Since Moonlight Blue was not listed on the October 1953 Price List as a current production color, it can be assumed that the punch bowl was made only in Crystal.

The Caprice nude, small rose bowl and the punch bowl are in private collections and are not offered for sale. Several other rarely seen or unusual Caprice pieces offered for sale at the Antique Show held in conjunction with the 1981 NCC Convention included the #202 cracker jar and cover in Moonlight Blue, a large "cuspidor" in Moonlight Blue, a #31 2 piece cake salver in Crystal, #15 12 ounce flat pressed tumblers in Crystal Alpine, and Crystal #301 cordials and #200 wines.

The Caprice story is far from being complete. As with other Cambridge patterns, it is a never ending source of surprises. In the future I will add another chapter and discuss Caprice vases. In the meantime, I am always eager to hear from anyone with knowledge of unusual Caprice items or related information.
